IF YOU CATCH A FALLING LEAF, YOUR LOVE WILL COME TRUE
NOBODY BELIEVED IT BUT THEY TRIED TO CATCH ONE ANYWAY
BUT AMONG THE VAST LEAVES FALLING DOWN, I COULDN'T CATCH A SINGLE ONE

I GUESS I'M NOT LUCKY.
I HAVE A QUESTION

BETWEEN TWO PEOPLE WHO LIKE EACH OTHER
WHAT HAPPENS IF ONLY ONE IS CAUGHT?
WHO KNOWS?

RUSTLE

THIS IS WHY I HATE BEING THE BAD GUY...
BUT THIS IS THE END I WON'T TELL ANYMORE
WELL... THOSE TWO LOOK LIKE THEY'LL DO WELL...

episode "confession"

When I first began "Railroad", I answered "love" to the interview question, what I want to show to the readers through "Railroad". A friend, lover, colleague, railroad, the subject may be different, but I wanted to make a story about love.

episode "Lacertae"

I used to think parents never age as well. I thought they would always be parents from the moment I was born, and into the future. Maybe that's why I complained a lot and said hurtful words thinking it was okay. But one day, the realization that my parents also had a childhood, and that they cannot stay forever made me very sad. I think a lot of people consider themselves like the Lacertae. People think their is existence blurry, nobody cares about where they are, and most people wouldn't know if they disappeared one day.

But Lacertae definitely exists. Maybe its light is dim and not many people know about it, but it will be shining bright at this moment. Who knows? Maybe centuries later, Lacertae may have a tale of its own^^

14th episode "the night of galaxy express"

This episode's title, 'The Night of Galaxy Express,' is a child's story by Genji Miyazawa who is called the Anderson of Japan. I didn't know before but "Galaxy Express 999" was based on that story (of course they are completely different stories) "Railroad" began with Galaxy Express 999 so I think this was appropriate for the ending of "Railroad". Genji Miyazawa wrote 'The Night of Galaxy Express' during wartime when the 2nd World War and the Manchurian incident happened, but the story is so beautiful, it is hard to believe that it was written during that time of war. Although his fantastic stories were neglected during his time, I think he was happy to write his childhood dreams. I was happy while drawing "Railroad" as well. ^^

One journey ends and a new one begins
Goodbye, Metel - the horn cries with many memories aboard
Goodbye... Metel...
Goodbye Galaxy Express 999
Goodbye - days of childhood ..
